In February, Cristian and I took a Friday afternoon adventure to the Bronx for lunch. All we had planned on doing was eating, but we ended up staying for quite a while. The first restaurant we went to was Japan Kawa on 108th street and Morrisania Avenue. We shared a bento platter. The platter was stuffed with delicious things and was filled with protein. Super delicious sushi. Topped with yummy meat for dipping. Yum! After we ate we took a walk down Morrisania. I love the architecture of this building. We also stopped in a small Korean Restaurant called Subway on the corner of Morrisania Avenue and 167th Street. We ordered some nachos and Chinese food. Super yum! Then we headed to “The Bronx Tweaker” (BT) Bar, which is a really cool, small bar located on East 183rd Street and Tinton Avenue. At the bar they have plastic mugs which you can decorate with whatever drink you want. At the bar there are mural walls with funny sayings. One of the cool things about the bar is that it’s a bottle club, so you can get a club card and get a bunch of different drinks for $30. It’s worth it! The BT Bar After we ate dinner we headed back to our hotel. We made it home just in time to see the sunset from our balcony. Follow me on Twitter Instagram Tattooed Toast – NYC My
